

Student Energy is a global not-for-profit dedicated to inform, unite, and inspire young energy students from around the world, giving them the tools they need to improve the Global Energy System.

The Student Energy Summit is the most important energy-related event in which any student from around the world can take part. It has happened four times and has gathered around 2,000 future leaders from more than 130 countries. After a competition between the most prominent universities from around the world, the National Autonomous University of México (UNAM) won the postulation, and in 2017 it will occur in Mérida, México.

The 800 future delegates are brilliant young leaders from around the world; they all go through a selection process that allows us to be sure that only the brightest attend. After previous summits, SES alumni have accomplished the feat of taking their place as leaders in the Global Energy System, either by establishing their companies such as Iluméxico or by integrating themselves into existing institutions such as the UN, IEA, OLADE, and IRENA.

The Speakers and participants include leading energy experts from around the world. For this edition of the Summit we have invited speakers such as Patricia Espinosa, Executive Secretary of the UNFCCC, Rachel Kyte, CEO of SE4All, David Renné, President of the International Energy Society, David Hochschild, Renewable Energy Commissioner for California, and Michael Liebreich, Chairman of BNEF.

The Partners range from academic institutions, government and international agencies, and of course, the most prominent energy-related companies. Some of our partners include the Energy Ministry from México (SENER), UNAM, Yucatán's Government, as well as prominent universities.

The team that will make this happen is a proven, multidisciplinary group of students from some of the best universities in Mexico City, led by UNAM through its Renewable Energy Institute.

We dearly hope that you find this attractive and that we might work together for your benefit and ours so together, we can host the best Student Energy Summit yet.
